MICHIGAN FRAT TO HAVE $30,000 HOUSE

After Three Years Members Enter Permanent Home

Aleph, the University of Michigan Chapter of Acacia, has a home again. Its $200,000 chapter house was completed this week. Acacia is a fraternity of master masons, having chapters in twenty-five of the larger universities in the United States. The Michigan chapter was the first. Three years ago last New Year's eve the Michigan chapter was driven out of its home. Then a fire of unknown origin burned Acacia Lodge.

Red and White Scores Shut-Out Reversal of Toronto Showing

By Score of 2 to 0 McGill Wrest Victory From Varsity in Hardest Fought Contest of Season—Pace Strenuous Throughout

MCGILL'S DEFENCE SPECTACULAR

Mann's Work in Goal Brilliant Throughout—Parsons Shows Up Well on Forwards—Knight Stars For Blue and White—Masson and Parson Score

In a hard fought game that left no result in doubt until the sounding of the gong at full time, McGill defeated Varsity last night at the Arena, reversing the showing made in Toronto two weeks ago, and in turn administering a shut-out, 2-0. From the spectators' viewpoint it was an interesting game to watch; from the players, it was extremely strenuous. Save for the delays from off-sides and one or two minor injuries, the pace was kept up at top speed throughout.

There is no doubt that the credit for last night's victory must go largely to McGill's sterling defence. For the better part of the time the play hovered about McGill nets. Save for the last seven minutes, when Varsity was playing with a six-man team, the Blues were always on the aggressive.

Again and again their two and three-man rushes would bring the puck right in to the McGill defence. Only to have their combination blocked by a check from Hughes, a hook from the long-armed Rankin, or a spectacular save by Shorty Mann. It is seldom that in intercollegiate hockey a better defence game has been put up in goal, than was played by Mann last night. On a conservative estimate he must have stopped four to every one that the Varsity goalkeeper was called upon to solve. High and low from any angle, they were all the same to Shorty. It seemed as though nothing could get by him.

In the forward division Varsity at least held their own. They had it over in McGill for combination, and man for man were able to hold their covers. The McGill forwards however, played a brilliant individual game, with occasional flashes of team work, that never failed to have its effect.

The hard practices of the last two weeks had given the men a condition that they lacked in the former games against Queens and Varsity, and they were able to stand the pace till the last. There was a marked improvement, too, in checking back, and in the support of each other. Though two or three passes were not made in evidence, the puck was seldom lost by one man, without having another man right on his heels to pick it up.

The rushes of the defence of both teams were a feature of the game. Rankin, Hughes and Knight frequently tormented their way through the opposing teams, only to have their shots go wide, or stopped by the splendid work of Laird or Mann. Ramsay Rankin was particularly unfortunate in this respect. At least a dozen times, the heavy McGill defence worked his way through the whole six opposing men, only to have his shot go high or be stopped by a spectacular save on the part of Laird. On one occasion Rankin had drawn Laird from the nets and it seemed certain that a third goal would come from his stick, but the puck missed by a matter of less than inches.

The three star men for the Red and White were Mann and Rankin, on the defence, and Parsons on the forward. Eric broke into the game shortly before half time, and the second goal came from his stick after a spectacular end to end rush. It is possible that he was the speediest man on the forward divisions of either team. He circled and checked back beautifully, hooking out the puck in a way that broke up many a Varsity rush, and saved McGill defence the trouble.

Hughes, on the defence, was playing in his best form. He blocked and cleared well, and his rushes many times carried the puck through the Varsity defence. Bill, as well as Rankin, however, was unfortunate in his shooting. Some of his shots went wild, but more often it was only the clever blocking of Laird that saved the nets for the Blue and White.

McGill started the game with Hooper holding down right wing, and Wickson at centre. The former broke his skate, after about fifteen minutes' play and was replaced by Ryley. Wickson was replaced by Parsons a few minutes before half time. Both Hooper and Wickson played hard, close checking games, when they were on the ice.

At left wing, Grey Masson, during the first half, played one of his best games. McGill's first score came from his stick, after a beautiful end to end rush, from an angle that seemed almost impossible. During the second half, Grey dropped back more on the defensive, and while his work was not so spectacular, he was still most effective in warding off dangerous rushes from the McGill nets.

At centre Davidson played a great game throughout. Though he had been laid up for some time with an injured foot, he stood the pace with the best of them. His checking back was most effective work, and the Blues generally found, no matter where they obtained the puck, that the first man they had to pass was Davidson.

Ryley, who replaced Hooper at right wing, was called upon to cover a very speedy man. Aird, however, found his match. For a time during the second half, when Masson was on the bench, and McGill was playing with six men, Ryley and Davidson kept the puck for a full two minutes within the Varsity's defence territory.

For the Blue and White the hardest working man undoubtedly was Knight. His rushes were spectacular, but they seldom got farther than the McGill outer defence, and Mann took care of any that got past them. On defensive work Knight showed up even better, using his weight to advance and clear the puck. During the second half, he stopped many hot ones, that looked like almost certain goals.

The Varsity forward division displayed better team work than did the Red and White, using the three-man and even the four-man rush. Half a dozen times for every time that the McGill men attempted it. For that reason it is hard to single out individual players. Sinclair, Jupp and Aird all played this combination, and checking game till the very last minute of going.

The ice was in good condition, and the game was free from rough or questionable work. Five penalties were administered to McGill and three to the Blue and White aggregation, but they were for minor offences, and there was little deliberate fouling. The game was ably handled by Tommy Riddell, hockey referee.

Riddell, who enforced the no-off-side rule strictly. Varsity were the more frequent offenders against this rule and therefore found themselves more frequently held up by it.

There was a fair turn-out in spite of the bitter cold, and interest in the game was keen.

SIR WILLIAM MACDONALD CHOSEN CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY

McGill's noble benefactor, "the best friend of education in Canada" has accepted the unanimous invitation of the Board of Governors to fill this office in succession to the late Lord Strathcona

It was announced yesterday that Sir William Macdonald had agreed to accept the invitation which had been unanimously extended to him by the Board of Governors to assume the office of Chancellor of the University in succession to the late Lord Strathcona.

The Governors will meet at an early date to make the formal appointment in terms of the statutes of the University under which they are empowered to fill the office of President of the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning, who is also Chancellor of the University.

Great appreciation has been expressed in University circles that the successor to Lord Strathcona in this important office should be one who has been so closely associated with the late Chancellor in the general work of the University, and who, by the foundation of Macdonald College, the equipment of the Faculty of Applied Science, and in other ways has contributed so largely along with Lord Strathcona to the great expansion which McGill has achieved in recent years.

The new chancellor has been one of McGill's most ardent supporters, his gifts being second only to those of his illustrious predecessor. The value of the gifts that he has given to McGill at various times is estimated at considerably more than five million dollars. Through him the Montreal University became possessed of the finest Physics building and equipment on the continent, the building and its entire furnishings with all the elaborate apparatus being the entire gift of Sir William. With an idea to the future of the university for which he has expressed in so many ways his affection, Sir William Macdonald recently purchased a tract of land just east of the Royal Victoria Hospital, which will provide for all needed extensions of the university building for some years to come.

FIRST TRACK MEET OF SEASON TODAY

Leland Stanford, Jr. Athletes Will Compete This Morning—Many Events

The first track meet of the season will be held this morning by the Leland Stanford University team, when all the athletes who are in training will be expected to compete in their respective events. Although the runners were given a work-out in competition last week the first individual competition is scheduled for to-day.

A feature of the work-out will be the shortening of all distances in the track events. All 100 and 120 yard sprinters will compete in a 75-yard dash. The 440 men are to run 300 yards while the half milers are slated for the 600 yard distance. Instead of four laps around the track the milers will run 880 yards and the men who are out for the two mile will compete in the 1540 yard run or a distance of three and one-half laps.

GAME THIS AFTERNOON TO DECIDE THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Varsity and McGill Each Easy Winners Over Queens—Meet at Central "Y"—Red and White Boys Ready to Play a Whirlwind Battle—Hard Fortnight's Practice Puts Local Players in Splendid Trim.

"We're out to win this afternoon all right. We're working for a kind of that Intercollegiate Championship," said McGill. The speed of the McGill senior basketball forward line yesterday.

On the match at the Y. M. C. A. tonight between the Varsity and the Red and White, depends the home of the Intercollegiate trophy for another year. Defeated at Toronto, but good winners against Queens, the McGill boys have given the intervening time since the last game over to hard practice.

The defence line-up of the Red and White team is problematical. Smith, Comover and Williams will be the three from which the pair will be picked. It is probable that a half-time change will be made by arrangement. Captain Baldwin during the Varsity game shifted to centre place and since that time has found he can work to better advantage in that position. He can be relied on for some good passing, and fast work, and for baskets.

For speed the game this afternoon will beat the Queens game here all to pieces. Both teams play the same fast straight game. The big end of the score will probably go to the team which can best stand the strain. McGill has the advantage of playing on a floor they are used to. The Central "Y" floor is much smaller than the one at Toronto, while the baskets here are backed by solid, unyielding slabs, which the Blue and White men will have to get used to before they can go far in the scoring list.

GYM. CLASSES.

U. OF T. BREAKS EVEN WITH HAMILTON

University of Toronto Juniors surprised Hamilton in the second of home and home games by forcing the local youngsters to a 3 to 3 tie, thus retaining their two goal lead secured in Toronto on Saturday last.

At one time the locals had the score 3 to 0, and appeared to be sure winners, but the collegians came back in the last ten minutes of play, and skating the Red and White off their feet, ran in sufficient goals to even up the count and win the round. University of Toronto excelled in combination play, and were the speediest skaters. Milne, their rover, was the best man on the ice. His speed was bewildering. Reid was best for Hamilton, the students watching Parker too closely to permit of a repetition of his performance in the first game of the round.

The teams:
Hamilton—Sloan, goal; Connor and Parker, defence; McClurg, rover; Reid, centre; Boyd and McArthur, wings.
Varsity—Malone, goal; Mathers and Adams, defence; Milne, rover; Singhe, centre; Dufoe and Saunders, wings.
Referee—F. C. Waggoner, Toronto.

Another curious incident also occurred towards the end of the game. Jupp charged down the ice only to be checked by Big Ramsay Rankin. As he fell, however, he gave the puck a shove with his free hand. It went slowly rolling towards the goal, and had Mann not been on the watch might have beaten him and slipped in unnoticed.

The probable line-up will be—
Goal—14.
Reid 17.
Goal—14.

SIDE LIGHTS ON THE GAME

A Few Odd Things That Struck A Daily Fan

Friday, the Thirteenth; unlucky (for Varsity).

Good ice; clean game; fast play.

It will take another season for the teams in the Intercollegiate League to get used to the new off-side rule.

It was a real cold night; a little fracas in the intermission warmed things up, only for a brief time, and that was soon quelled.

Oh you Ramsay Rankin! Be my valentine!

Puzzle: When, in hockey, is a rubber ball, not a rubber ball?
Answer: When its Shorty Mann in goal, and a hot shot is bounced back (Ho! Ho!)

Only three men in the Varsity team patronized the tube skates.

Varsity played a good steady game all through; when McGill fell back a little, she always came well to the fore.

In spite of the bitterly cold weather there was a fair crowd out.

Bill Hughes played a consistently hard, team game, from gong to gong.

Parsons has a kind of easy way of skating, so that the score he made, a few minutes after he came on the ice, with its accompanying run, was done in a cool and collected manner, as if he was skating to meet someone on the campus rink.

The strict off-side ruling led to many otherwise unnecessary stops in the game.

Ryley played a good strong game, repeatedly placing the Varsity nets in great danger.

Who had the most luck? McGill repeatedly got clear behind the Varsity defence, and only by the narrowest streak of luck, assisted by Laird, did not some of Ramsay Rankin's hot ones bulge the nets. Bill Hughes and Ryley, and several pairs of McGill men took the puck up for what looked like certain sure ones. On the other hand, Grey Masson sent in the rubber from what looked like an impossible angle. Also on the other hand, Shorty Mann was kept much busier than the former Regina goal keeper. So both teams have lots to say "thank you marm," to provide for.

Hooper was playing a good game when he left; while Wickson also made many good check backs and rushes.

Knight was watched closely by Referee Riddell. Although he checked too closely, he worked well and was the most formidable of the Varsity set-back.

Shorty Mann's certainly some goal-keeper," said Shiner White, after the match.

The boys themselves were all tickled to death at the result.

Little Jupp of Varsity, and Rankin were the big and the little of it last night. They didn't collide.

R.V.C. PLAY BASKETBALL

This Afternoon at Victoria School

THREE GAMES

Three basketball games will take place at the Victoria School this afternoon. These games are in the Mount Royal Women's Basketball League series.

The first game, called for 2.15, is between Macdonald Second Team and Old Techs. Referee, Miss Cartwright and Miss Dowle.

At 2.30, Macdonald First and R. V. C. will play. Referee, Miss Roberts and Miss MacCallum.

The R. V. C. team will line up as follows:
Goals—G. Ryan and C. Peitz.
Centre—G. Rogers and G. Macdonald.
Guards—V. Henry and G. Story.
Reserves—
Goal—F. Kilgour.
Centre—M. Bennetts.
Guard—E. Chauvin.

Jupp and Bailey of Varsity, kept up a steady attack on "Shorty," and they both made good combination, which we hope will do much damage in their game with Queens.

Laird showed nerve in twice rushing out within a couple of minutes. He saved two goals from Ryley's and Rankin's sticks that way.

TWO GAMES THIS A.M.

Postponed Arts Games to Take Place

INTERCLASS

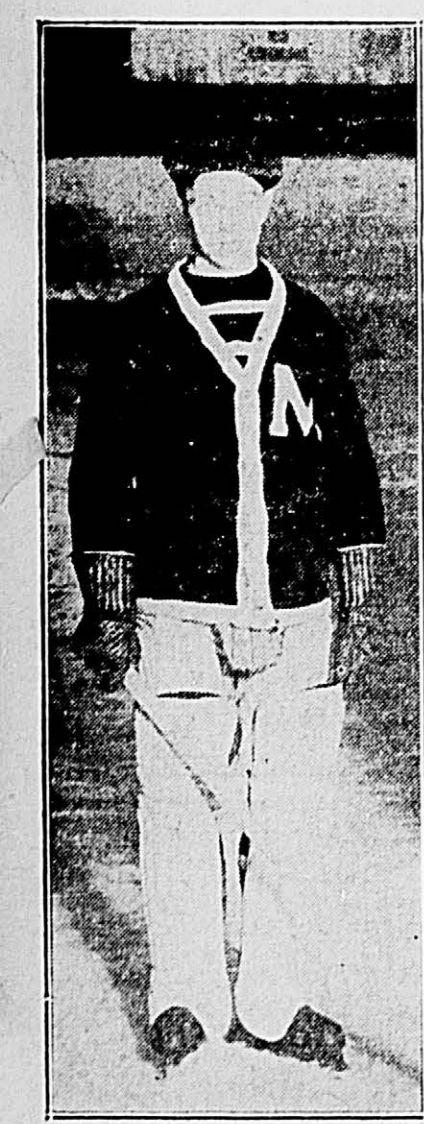

This afternoon, weather permitting, the interclass matches in the faculty of Arts, that have been postponed on two or three occasions, are to be run off.

Arts '15 will play Arts '16 at 12 o'clock, and Arts '14, Arts '17 at ten. Both games promise to be good exhibitions of hockey. The ice is warranted hard (perhaps), and the ability of the players cannot be doubted. The last week has given all the teams an excellent chance to become organized. Most of them have so organized that the players are familiar with one another's play.

The Arts' Freshmen have been practicing especially hard. Twice a week they make use of the Campus rink, and have fast workmen. The Arts seniors have not had so many practices, but are bound that they will come out ahead. The names of those who are to take part is sufficient to guarantee to the spectators some most unique hockey.

The probable line-up will be—
Goal—14.
Reid 17.
Goal—14.

U. OF P. UNBEATEN YET IN BASKETBALL

Final practice for the game with Columbia was held, with the Varsity continuing to show the same speed and snap which they put into their game last Saturday night, and which so bewildered Dartmouth. The same line-up will be used to start this game as took the floor against the Green and White, with Heindel and Crane at forward, with Heindel and Crane at forward, Hardwick at guards. It is barely possible that an eleventh-hour change may be made and Bullitt substituted for Crane, but he will probably not be sent in until later in the game.

Columbia has not been beaten on her own floor by Pennsylvania since 1908, nor has she suffered a defeat this season. She has four straight victories to her credit since beginning the Intercollegiate League games, and apparently has a good chance for the championship. Although she has the lead, that lead is none too secure, the universal opinion of basketball critics being that the team has been playing beyond their power, and that they are due for a tumble.

The Columbia line-up is still uncertain. Although Meenan, last year's star, is sure of his position at forward, and Benson and Leo will probably hold

HOPES TO FIND CURE FOR DREAD DISEASE

The medical department of the University of Michigan wants $100,000 to establish a cancer hospital, gifts for radium and money to establish research fellowships. Its chiefs believe that with such facilities it could do something toward finding the cause and cure of cancer.

Dr. A. S. Warthin, professor of pathology, says that in Michigan's pathological laboratory more cases of a certain malignant form of cancer, which textbooks say is rare, have been reported than have been found in all the other pathological laboratories of the world.

"I believe a cure for cancer will ultimately be found," said Dr. Warthin recently, "but we are working now in the dark. For superficial cancers of the skin or parts of the body accessible from the surface X-rays, radium and mesothorium are curative agents. But for the deeper case of the internal organs there is at present but little hope that either radium or mesothorium will be able complete to kill all the cancer cells."

down their positions at forward and guard respectively, the men for the other two places have not been definitely picked, as the competition in the Columbia squad is very keen.

At Varsity practice Coach Kieffer drilled his men principally in signal practice, and in getting down the floor with the ball after the jump. Benson and Hardwick were both used at centre, but it is doubtful if any chance will be made in that position at the present time. Captain Seelbach was out on the floor in uniform, but did not take part in practice. It is not likely that he will be able to get into any of the games until next week.

Now what! If McGill beats Queens, and Varsity does likewise, a three-cornered tie for premier honours in the Intercollegiate series will result.

Towards the end of the second half a rather curious thing happened. Sinclair bored in on Mann with a shot of bullet like accuracy, which Shorty stopped in his usual cool manner. When he came to clear, however, Mann could discover no puck. He hunted around for a short space and finally came upon the elusive disk hidden away beneath his goal-pads. Sinclair didn't know what had happened any more than Mann did, and for a time both were a pretty well surprised pair of young men.

SIR WILLIAM MACDONALD

The timely appointment of Sir William Macdonald as Chancellor of the University in succession to the late Lord Strathcona brings to mind once again the indebtedness of McGill to this noble figure in the educational world of this Dominion.

"A shrewd business man, with many peculiarities and a faculty for doing good in a quiet way," Sir William has seen the possibilities of this country. He has realized that in the development and conservation of the resources of Canada, education plays the leading part.

As a man of business, he is keenly alive to the necessity for efficient training. He has peered into the future and has seen that the latent talents of men must be trained in order to fit them for the problems of to-day and of to-morrow.

This grasp of the need for preparation in order to make smooth the path of progress has led Sir William Macdonald to invest much of his fortunes in educational institutions.

To McGill, this patron of learning has given endowments aggregating over ten millions. Macdonald College he established and endowed at a cost of half the sum. His munificence has made possible the founding of Consolidated Rural Schools in various centres in the east.

Throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion he is known as "the greatest friend of education." That this statement is true, his generosity attests.

His chief interest has always lain in McGill. Three of the buildings which adorn the University Campus bear his name, not to speak of the many professorships which he has endowed.

For many years, Sir William has been a governor of the University and now we are proud to call him Chancellor.

FROM THE MCGILL DAILY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1912.

Local sporting enthusiasts and particularly local aquatic enthusiasts will have an opportunity of witnessing a first-class exhibition of swimming and water polo on Saturday at 3 o'clock in the M.A.A.A. gym when Toronto meets McGill in the annual Intercollegiate championships.

The Science Undergraduate Dinner was held at the Queen's Hotel. The function was a success in every way. Over two hundred were present, including a large number of professors and representatives from other universities and faculties.

The Mock Parliament met last night to thresh out the Irish question as brought forward by the Liberal Government. The meeting was only fairly well attended but the standard of debate and general conduct of proceedings were of a high order.

ROUND ABOUT THE COLLEGE

TO WHICH EVERYBODY IS A REPORTER.

Since the weather was not quite so cold yesterday afternoon, a number of people enjoyed an hour's skating on the campus rink. It is to be hoped that by Monday, it will be sufficiently mild for the usual number to engage in this form of exercise.

It seems the Varsity basketball team arrived in town yesterday morning expecting to meet the McGill team in the afternoon. This could not be, since the McGill men are prepared to play this afternoon. How the mistake arose is not certain. If the fault lies with McGill, then it will be up to them to pay Varsity's expenses at the Windsor for the additional day.

Two or three panes of glass have been broken during the past week in the basement of the Union. It seems that some indiscriminate roughhouse artists are rather fond of smashing things in general. They start throwing books at one another, and the man with the poor aim usually manages to put one over on a pane of glass.

Army lent 8,000 men in uniform with arms and baggage, led by the officers. Another cause is that of the Italian government, which is collecting all the films taken during the war in Tripoli. In England the same thing is done for the films of the king's coronation events.

At least 12 distinct lines of work are successfully followed by university women, say the latest vocational statistics of women of the University of Wisconsin. Of 2769 women graduates 1259 are engaged in gainful occupations—1035 in teaching, and 224 in non-teaching vocations. Stated otherwise, 45.2 per cent. are engaged in gainful occupations—37.3 per cent. in teaching and 8 per cent. in the other vocations. Of the wage earners $2.2 per cent. are teachers. The other 17.8 per cent. represent a variety of vocations—library work, 5.5 per cent.; social service, 2.7 per cent.; clerical work, 1.6 per cent.; professional work, 1.4 per cent.; literary work, 1.3 per cent.; domestic economy and art (non-teaching), 1.2 per cent.; civil service, 1.1 per cent.; agriculture, 1 per cent.; business, .95 per cent.; pharmacy, .63 per cent.; scientific work, .32 per cent.; economic service, .08 per cent.

"Science teaches us the retention and conservation of bodily heat."

"The modern ulstering, light, airy and fleecy, is oftentimes more comfortable for spring days than a so-called spring overcoat."

"See what I have to offer you in some rare new British importations at $20 and $25."

"Soon I'll be having my spring fashion opening, but there's four months yet of this good old Canadian Winter."

THINGS THEATRICAL

JOHN BARRYMORE IN "AN AMERICAN CITIZEN" AT THE STRAND.

John Barrymore, whose greatest distinction on the stage was derived from his phenomenal success in "The Fortune Hunter," one of the greatest comedy triumphs in metropolitan stage history, will be featured at the Strand for three days commencing Monday, February 16th, in "An American Citizen," a comedy romance in four parts.

It is an exciting drama of adventures and misadventures, fortunes and misfortunes, with numerous comic complications, which centre about a young American who, in the midst of his defeats and victories, never forgets his patriotism, though for a time, due to a chivalrous impulse, he is forced to forego his American citizenship, which he eventually regains, together with love and fortune.

Berensford Cruger, junior partner of the New York brokerage firm of Barry, Brown & Cruger, is left a fortune of £60,000 by an English uncle on the condition that he renounce his American citizenship, become a British subject and marry an English woman; the money otherwise being assigned to the Archaeological Society of England. Cruger patriotically refuses the fortune on these conditions when his pretty English cousin, Beatrice, Carew, who has been disinherited in favor of Cruger, because of a past romance with an American, suggests to him that they marry and so keep the money in the family—Cruger's American chivalry and a strong interest in his attractive cousin are aroused. At this critical moment the disappearance of Brown, one of the partners of the firm, with $30,000—which he had in trust—is discovered. Cruger and Barrymore feel responsible for their partner's defalcation, which adds another incentive to Cruger's consent to a hasty marriage with Beatrice, who immediately returns to England, after both have agreed to leave each other absolutely free.

The picture runs replete with interest to the end—everything works out satisfactorily. One of the most interesting scenes is where, some time later, Cruger meets his cousin wife at Nice, and they proceed to fall seriously in love with each other, and many complications, pathetic and comic, ensue.

Strand patrons who have been in the habit of seeing these Famous Players Films should not miss this one, as it is a treat.

The first three days of next week the fourth instalment of the great serial story, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," entitled "The Royal Slave," will be shown, showing Kathlyn escaping from the "Temple of the Lion" fleeing into the depths of the forest and taking refuge in a hunter's blind, platformed in a tree, has a strenuous experience, but is finally driven from her retreat by the wild inhabitants of the jungle to a worse fate, falling into the hands of slave traders. Octavius, the amateur detective will also be seen Monday and Tuesday. This is the second of the twelve comic detective stories by Frederic Amiel Kummer, appearing in the Pictorial Review.

"Pitzzhugh's Ride" is the title of a two-part drama that will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday. A powerful love and war story, constructed on the external struggle, one bar is removed and the romance ends, when our hero on his noble steed rides down the aisle of the church where a marriage ceremony is about to be performed, captures the fair lady and rides away.

The feature picture for Friday and Saturday is "Sophie Picks a Dead One," a clever western comedy filled with hilarious situations. This is positively a riot from start to finish. Margaret Joslin as Sophie Clatts, Victor Potel as Slippery Slim, and Harry Todd as Mustang Pete are at your service in this sensational comedy feature.

"Chasing the Smugglers," a two part feature that will be shown on Sunday only. An exciting aeroplane flight and a desperate motor boat chase are two of the blood stirring incidents. Luce and Luce, playing a variety of musical instruments, will furnish the popular novelty, and Betty Donn, the popular soprano, will sing some of her greatest successes during the coming week.

The Musical Recitals on the Hope-Jones Unit Orchestra continue to be a great drawing feature for Friday afternoons.

EV A MOORE AND H. V. ESMOND, IN THE DEAR FOOL AT HIS MAJESTY'S

YALE STAR CHOSEN TO COACH UNIVERSITY

Fred Murphy to Get Northwestern Into Shape for Oct. 10th

Fred J. Murphy, Yale, 1910, has been appointed football coach at Northwestern University to succeed Denis Grady. The choice of Murphy was made by the trustee members of the Northwestern athletic committee.

Murphy lives in New York City, and has assisted every year in the coaching at Yale, being field coach in 1911 and advisory coach since that time. He will report at Evanston March 15, and his work at Northwestern will be continuous throughout the collegiate year. The contract is for three years.

Murphy's experience in football has been thorough. In 1905 he played left half back on Andover, an undefeated team. The next year he played the same position on the Yale freshman team, which was not scored upon during the season.

In setting Northwestern ready to meet the maroons Oct. 10, the earliest the two teams have ever met, the new coach has a strenuous piece of work ahead of him.

No other changes have been made in the athletic situation at Northwestern. Lewis Omer remains athletic director, and Denis Grady will continue to act as basketball and baseball coach.

SENIOR PLAY ON THE 27TH

Rehearsals Are Becoming Very Frequent—Participants Are Quite Enthusiastic

An inconsistency crept into the account of the Senior Play yesterday morning. It was stated that the performance would take place next Friday. This is not the case. The play will be given two weeks from last night, on the twenty-seventh of the month.

The rehearsals have been giving infinite satisfaction to all those taking part. A considerable number of them have taken place during the last week. In fact, it was stated, that every second afternoon and two or three evenings had been given up. The preparation for the play involves a very considerable amount of work, not only on the part of those participating, but also on the part of the stage managers, and those in charge of the arrangements.

The Orchestra will handle the musical end of the entertainment. They have been devoting much of their time to getting up the Fire-Fly, which will likely be their main selection. They will probably play the Hungarian Lullaby, as well as a number of popular marches and medleys.

Tickets for the play are on sale at the Union.

FOURTH YEAR HYDRAULICS

Still Final Results Posted in the Engineering Building Yesterday

Charles Frohman will present at His Majesty's, beginning Monday evening, Eva Moore and H. V. Esmond and their company from the Criterion Theatre, London, in a remarkable comedy of English life, "The Dear Fool," written by Mr. Esmond.

Comedy and serious interest alternate throughout the three acts, and the interest of the auditor is sustained until the final drop of the curtain.

Mr. Esmond, it is said, has not been guided by the usual ethics of the stage in his latest offering. Miss Moore in the role of Betty Dunbar, a widow of forty with two young sons, is in love with an attractive young man fifteen years her junior. But she confides in Sir Robert Ingfield, Mr. Esmond, her elderly suitor, that she has decided that marriage with her young sweetheart would be a great mistake. The widow receives a summons to London to bid farewell to this youth who is about to start for Canada. With only a small income she is dependent upon the charity of an elder hard-hearted spinster sister, to whom she explains that she has been hurriedly summoned to London to visit a friend. Mrs. Dunbar's sister is being courted by a penniless Marquis, who is willing to share his title with any woman willing to shoulder his debts. While Betty is away her youngest son is injured by a fall from a tree. To add to the complications the woman she was supposed to be visiting enters the house. In reply to surprised inquiries, she explains that she has been away from London for several days, and never sent any telegram. The complications that arise from the situation furnish the basis for a most entertaining and absorbing play. The unusual story of romance of middle-age strikes a responsive chord and the excellent acting adds greatly to the enjoyment of the performance. Mr. Esmond appears to great advantage as the elderly suitor, Miss Moore is charming and amusing in the role of the flighty widow.

The company is excellent and comprises Reginald Graydon, Estelle Despa, Marion Courtney, Leslie Hanes, Howard Stuart, Constance Groves, Jessamine Newcomb, Fred Groove, and Harry Ashford.

There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Pithy Paragraphs All-run-into-together

Because of failure to comply with the ruling of the college authorities prohibiting the dancing of the tango, six students of Gettysburg College have been suspended for two weeks. They composed the committee from each of the six fraternities having the dances of Jan. 11 in charge and permitted one or two of the new dances.

No more interfraternity dances will be held this year, except one just before commencement.

The striking student waiters at the University of Wisconsin won, the business management of the university commons granting all the demands presented by the waiters. The commons at Lathrop Hall will re-open Monday morning with the full force of student waiters on duty. The students demanded that all the men discharged when they protested against the plan of the business management of the commons to reduce the number of waiters be reinstated, that the most needy students be given preference, and that there be no discrimination between men who do and men who do not belong to any organization in the university.

According to statistics, 400 colleges and 5,000 schools were represented by eleven last fall. Approximately 43,000 games were played, and 150,000 players participated in ten contests and practices. Placing the average attendance at these games as low as 300, the total attendance would not be far from 13,000,000.
